TOWN TOPICS' 29th Annual Appeal Suggests That Christmas Is a Time to Share

When you go shopping this year, trying to stuff bundles of toys and the Christmas goose into the little foreign car because somebody else in the family has the station-wagon today, pause for a moment.

Year 'round, even in this affluent suburb, are men and women and children who live outside that comfortable circle of warm food and too many things to play with, families who must decide whether the welfare check is to be spent on food or fuel, kids who pass by the toyshop windows with a shrug--what's the point?

To reach these fellow Princetonians, to let them know you know they're there, TOWN TOPICS has, each year for 29 years, asked for contributions to its annual Christmas Appeal.

The Family Service Agency of Princeton administers the fund and decides how it will be spent. The Agency knows how much it will mean to a teen-age boy to get off the streets and into summer camp. Agency workers know you need a boost to lift yourself out of welfare. And, often, a boost just to live.

Each year, TOWN TOPICS dedicates its annual appeal to the memory of Dan D. Coyle, a founder of TOWN TOPICS who died in 1973. He conceived the Idea for the fund in 1947, and every year thereafter, until he retired from active participation with TOWN TOPICS in 1970, he wrote the Annual Christmas Appeal. His compassion and his warmth caught the heart of the community and enabled the Family Service Agency to aid hundreds of Princeton residents over the years.

The case histories that follow have been assembled by the Agency from its files. Stories have been altered in ways that will protect the identity of the families involved. The men and women and children helped by your contribution know you helped, but they know, too, that you'll never know who they are.

The charity concept of carrying baskets of food to the poor is as outdated as Little Nell, but this year, Family Service dipped into TOWN TOPICS funds to buy Thanksgiving dinners for some half-dozen Princeton families who would otherwise have had to do without.

Increasingly, Family Service finds that welfare checks simply do not stretch to cover both food and fuel. The price of fuel has gone straight up the chimney and allotments haven't been adjusted to meet the increased cost.

Nor is Social Security adequate. An elderly Princeton woman, living alone in a small house on Social Security, turned to Family Service during a bitter cold spell last January. Emergency TOWN TOPICS money was used to buy a month's supply of fuel, and Family Service arranged with local welfare RAP SESSIONS HELD Edith Francis In Charge. "It's just give-and-take-informal, without structure.

We talk with each other."
Edith Francis, acting superintendent of schools, will meet with the community at another coffee-and-community hour this Thurcommunity hour this Thur-sday evening. It will be held in the Italian-American Spor-tsmen's Club on Terhune Road, and it will start at 8 z p.m.

Two interpreters will be present, Frank Soda and Serena Teriotti, so that questions can be addressed to Mrs. Francis in Italian, if the questioner prefers.

Mrs. Francis says she's found these community evenings an excellent way to meet people informally without the stiffness of a school board meeting-and with plenty of time to talk. She has held two such meetings this fall, one at Valley Road School and one in the Masonic Lodge on the corner of Maclean and John Street.

The last one held in October, brought out a standing-room-only crowd, and elicited the kinds of questions that can only be asked in a relaxed and friendly atmosphere.

People who don't even have children in the schools have attended, Mrs. Francis has found. They want to know about accountability, the meaning of "thorough-and-efficient," goals, the involvement of adults, parents and non-parents alike.

In advance of each meeting, the administrative staff has written to key people--in the black community or the Italian community, asking what particular problems are, and inviting support.

Gildar was also charged with the sale of narcotics in Princeton on October 25. Total bail was set at $20,000. Gildar was later released in $2,000

MELEE AT PHS
2 Officera injured, 5
Charged. Two Borough police officers were injured and five teenagers were charged following a shoving melee Friday evening, November 19, during the second of three Girls Athletic Association sport nights at the school.

Sgt. Thomas Procaccino, who made the charges, was treated at Princeton Medical Center for a stretched cornea of the right eye, Ptl. John Reppe was shoved to the ground and kicked in the head. He injured his elbow when it struck the pavement.

Arrested were Anthony Lewis, 18, of Lytle Street, charged with conducting himself in a disorderly and Robert manner; and Robert Williams, 18, and Thomas Moore, 18, both of Green Street, both charged with failure to obey a police order to disperse. All three were charged under the Borough's disorderly persons act manner; disorderly persons act.

In addition, two 17-year olds have been charged by the juvenile officer with engaging in a disorderly proceeding.

Police were called to the school at 9:04 by school officials who said they had lost control of the situation. Sgt. Procaccino, and Patrolmen Randy Sutton, Victor Fasanella and Reppe responded. They were later joined by Sgt. Michael Kopliner and patrolmen John Hammond and William Potts of the Township.

According to Acting Superintendent Edith Francis, some 30 students and adults were told there was no more room left in the gym and to come back for Saturday's performance. When the police arrived, a number of shoving matches between the officers and members of the crowd developed. Sgt. Procaccino told the crowd three times to leave. Some 20 stayed, Miss Francis estimated. After Sgt. Procaccino said, "Third time--leave or be arrested!" 15 remained behind.

HOST FAMILIES SOUGHT AFS Exchange Students. The American Field Service International Scholarship program is of-fering families of Princeton area high school students the opportunity to become host parents to a foreign student for the next school year. And students from over 60 coun-tries have the chance to be one of those coming to Princeton under this remarkable program.

The teenage young man or woman who comes to Princeton will have been chosen because the selection committees here and abroad saw in him qualities of adaptability, open-mindedness and eagerness to learn which will make his experience a rewarding ore both for himself and for those with whom he comes in contact. He will participate in the life of this community, not as a visitor or a guest, but as a member of a family. And he will teach about his own land and his own people.

Costs are primarily paid by the AFS International and the AFS International and Chapter committees. The host family budgets for the student's food and lodging, family trips and modest birthday, holiday and farewell presents in accordance with its own way of living.

Other houses on the tour are The Barracks, the first property of the Stockton family and now owned by the Lewis B. Byrne, one of the state's lovefiest historic buildings; and the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hopper III, an old house with a striking new addition.

The Christmas shops and the tour headquarters will be at the Hun School on Edgerstoune Road. Tickets at $7.50 each may be ordered from Mrs. Robert Gorman, 1097 Stuart Road, or purchased at the Hun School or any of the six houses. The homes will feature bicentennial collec-tions this year.

STATE FREEZES SEWER

Downstream Approvat Detayed. It was supposed to be routine, a rubber-stamp approval. The Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority submitted on November 1 its application for design and construction money to complete downstream sewer sections designed to serve West Windsor, South Brun-swick and the two Princetons. The state promised to act in two weeks - certifying the request to the Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

But the certification has been caught in a state freeze. With funds beginning to run out, the state has frozen all certification until January 1, to work out priorities. It may be mid-January before the Authority gets the required approval.

Apparently, according to Robert Harvey, the executive director, the freeze applies only where money is con-cerned. It probably won't affect state action on the Authority's desire to implement the aingle-plant Plan A, because this involves only planning.

At last Tuesday's meeting, the Authority passed another resolution asking the state to make a decision sooo on Plan

The state's freeze means f delay completing interceptors for West Windsor and South Brunswick and relief for Princeton's trunk system.
This puts off full use of the new sewer plant now being built on River Road.

The plant is due to be finished in November, 1977 - ahead of schedule and ahead of the time when South Brunswick and West Windsor can tie in. This means Princeton will have to bear the whole cost of the plant, at least until May, 1978 and possibly tonger. Under service agreements among Authority com-munities, municipalities must start paying on a minimumflow basis as soon as the plant has been completed and accepted. However, the brunt of the costs will fall on Prin-ceton: $34,230 a month for the Borough and $37,940 a month for the Township.

IT'S NEW

To Us

Thanksgiving has come and gone, and if you are a traditionist who refuses to begin Christmas shopping until after this holiday has been properly celebrated, now is the time to begin.

While everyone always seems to have at least one turs on mother in law or can

While everyone always seems to have at least one fussy mother-in-law or cantankerous uncle on the list, we'd like to ignore them for the moment and begin instead with a pleasanter area – the children's gifts.

If any one store can be considered a headquarters for games, it has to be Toy Carousel at the Princeton Shopping Center. Owner Ron Tyler Is constantly on the lookout for new ones, and this year he has a group from Britain that he says are "terrific."

Elextion X is based on the British electoral system. Six parties compete on a board representing a map of England, and, of course, the object is to win the election. Then Hare & Tortoise is a racing game where you must buy each space, while Worldbeater deals with a trip from Fort Dunlop, England, to New York and back again. They cost $10.95 to $12.95, and none of the three can be won by luck.

Last year Toy Carousel introduced Princeton to Mastermind, and Mr. Tyler thinks Shoulder to Shoulder will be its successor. This is a tactical game for two or three players who must close their ranks, $6.95. You'll also find military games here based on battles from the War of Roses to the 1997 Invasion of America, and they are extremely accurate.

While these are all pretty much for adults, there are some for the younger set, too—our favorite being Mostly Ghostly, a lotto-type game in which you build a skeleton, one that even glows in the dark, $3.95.

Action games are always popular and this year's pick is all without the aid of batteries, $12.95. We also liked the Derby Horse Race, because it's surprisingly difficult for the same entry to win twice,

Marionettes are another major Christmas gift we found here, and they are marvelous.

Subway Puzzles. Puzzles are here, too, and the big news is the return of the subway ones from major cities around the world. We also liked the Beatrix Potter puzzle showing Peter Rabbit in a cold frame and for the smaller children a box of Mickey Mouse cubes that can be turned to form six different puzzles, $4.95 to

The ultimate toy, however, whether you are 9 or 90, is the radio-controlled sports cars we found at Nassau Hobby and Crafts, 142 Nassau Street. They are electrically powered and include antique and modern models, $24.95 to $90. The most elaborate is "George," an electric van that will go forward, backward, turn, stop, or increase its speed simply on your voice command.

Walkie Talkies, including the Space 1999 communicator for space adventures, are an excellent choice for boys who enjoy imaginative games, from $14.

When it comes to crafts, Caran D'Ache, a Swiss company, is unbeatable. We particularly like the Modella clay because it comes in bright colors that remain soft indefinitely, $6.98 to $8.49 for gift sets, or 49 cents for a small package of any color. Baby's First Christmas

A baby's first Christmas produces a joy all its own and is an event to be celebrated, possibly with a special gift.

If you are a grandparent, you might wish to contribute something that will someday be a family heirloom. Nassau heirloom. heirioom. Nassau Interior's 18th century mahogany highchair is just such an item. Beautifully made with a Queen Anne frame and a Chippendale splat, it even has a brass plate you can have engraved, $349.95.

A Cabin Creek quilt will also be passed on to many babies and become more treasured as time goes by. There are the traditional Dutch boy or girl and nine-patch patterns, as well as one with animals or an apple tree, $25 to $60

Then at The Clothesline, there are hand-knit sweaters and hats in a diamond-stitch design and some crocheted blankets with a scalloped edge. $17.95 to $20.

Nassau Hobby also has another clay, Pendo, that does air dry and thus this is your choice for jewelry making or miniatures, $2.79 and it too is available in colors.

Zinder's is a child's wonderland with toys for all ages. For mothers, dolls are irresistible, particularly the beautifully made Madame Alexander collection which begins with a chubby baby doll dressed in pink gingham and knitted white booties, $26.95. There are also Victorian ladies, Raggedy Anns and Andys, The Bionic Woman whose ears "ping" when her head moves, and Barbie as a ballerina or in Malibu, from

From Ernie and Bert Land. Sesame Street commands top billing from the pre-schoolers, and the toy manufacturers are well aware of this. At Zinder's, our choices were a cardboard Sesame Street house that the kids can play in and a Street Fair game which is played by matching colors in order to be the first one home to 123 Sesame Street with a cookie.

This same age group should also like the Creative Playthings Put-Together Tool Box made of natural and painted hardwoods that can be disassembled and rebuilt over and over again.

For rainy days, there is nothing like a book, especially "Charlie Brown's Super Book of Things To Do and Collect," such as puppets, mobiles, maps and fingerpainting, as well as riddles throughout,

$3.95. We also loved Michael Firth's "My Amazing Book of Autographs Collected by Me Myself," which asks the child to find the autographs of specific people such as friends at the beach, left-handed people, artists, a bird watcher and many more, $2.95 and it should be worth many hours of Woolworth's, 116 Nassau Street, is often the best spot to find television-advertised toys, frequently at excellent prices. For instance, the Fisher-Price Hospital with its ambulance, elevator and xray machine is specially

Dollar Man game, Kenner's

Spirograph that makes it easy to draw fascinating pictures, and Playskool's new Richard Scarry's Puzzletown series that includes Farmer Alfalfa's Farm, $2.99 to $12.44

Bikes are generally one of a child's favorite possessions, and a new one would be sure to be received with large eyes on Christmas morning. Tiger Auto, 26 Witherspoon Street, currently has about 600 new bikes in stock, and we doubt there is a style missing.

These include a beginner bike with training wheels, one with a convertible bar so it can be used by boys or girls, three-speed, five-speed, and 10-speed racing models. There is also a special folding bike by Raleigh, an exercycle by Columbia, and even a unicycle for the very talented. Prices start at about $60.

However, if someone on your list has outgrown a bike or simply has too many miles to cover each day, you should look at the mopeds. These motorized bikes by Motobecane get fantastic mileage, are easy to park and are probably the most inexpensive form of transportation around. We think they'd be perfect for a college student or young working person, $399 to $469 uniatures, $2.79 and it too is of course, many people already have bikes, but then Tiger Auto has lots of actors them. We liked

Food is a major part of all Christmas traditions, and Polly's has all the favorite candies. There are boxes of ribbon candy, cut-rock Christmas candy with pretty designs that go all the way through, bags of old-fashioned hard candies, Christmas mint starlights, and crystal cream mint wreathes, snowmen or leaves in green, white or red, $2 to $4 a pound.

Candy also makes a handsome gift and our choices here were a large milk chocolate Princeton "P" in a lovely silver package, Perugina's cherry chocolates, or the rich Mozart Kugeln which Polly says is "indescribably good," $3 and up.

Children's Clothing. Clothing is another Christmas thought and up the Square at The Clothesline we found some warm thoughts for the smallest children in the family. There are flannel nighties - white ones printed with Holly Hobbie or the alphabet and a pink and white gingham one trimmed with cotton lace, $6.95 to $10.75.

These are long, but now that thermostats are kept lower, even a long nightie often needs a robe to keep the wearer Christmas goodies. For the warm. Not particularly warm, but cute and extremely practical, is an Austrian bib apron we saw here too. It comes in a green, red and white small flowered print which makes it a great cover-up for Christ-mas dinner, but it is also nice any time of year for finger-painting or crafts, $6.75.

We found more robes and gowns, matching ones in fact, at Atlen's Children's Center, 134 Nassau Street. Prettiest of all is a pale yellow one with an old fashioned print of clocks, lamps and flowers. It has a ruffle-edged bib front and can be teamed with a gown, or pajamas if your size 4 to 14 girl prefers, $9 to $15.

Another matching set combines a patchwork sleeping bag with a gown, pajama or even a long ruffled skirt, $9 to $25, and the sleeping bag unzips to double as a comforter.

Danskin is a long-time big seller here at Allen's and each year this company becomes more fashionable, without depleting the quality of these tough clothes. New this year is a scoop-necked flare-leg navy or red jumpsuit with a white wide zipper and topstitching, sizes 4 to 6x, $14.75. Then for the bigger 7 to 14 girls, Danskin has another jumpsuit with short sleeves and an elastic waistband in navy, camel or sea green, also with white topstitching, $23.50.

For Christmas dinner at Grandmother's or a special party, we recommend Polly Flinders long blue dress with a smocked bodice, ribbon tie and ruffled hem. It's sure to make a picture book child out of any little girl, size 4-6x, $20.

The bigger girls, however, For boys this year the would undoubtedly prefer a choices are traditional -- priced under $2.

For the Snoopy fan,
Expressions has a Peanuts

Expressions has a Peanuts gang yo-yo, a Flying Ace glider, a pencil sharpener and a Woodstock whistle.

Then at Toy Carousel, also at the Shopping Center, there are some excellent coloring books of Alice in Wonderland, The Middle Ages or Stalpad Middle Ages or Stained Glass Windows. We also liked the Fat Cat's Craft and Coloring book which contains instructions on how to make masked marvels

Uptown, Zinder's has a whole display of little toys which includes Sesame Street finger puppets, a Chinese jump rope and unusually tiny mice dressed in costumes. From Tiger Auto, the bikers should like yellow reflector leg bands, while at the Loft Gallery the choice includes colorful wooden German spinning tips, bean bags and small plush animals such as a pink pig. We also feel all stockings should include something for the sweet tooth, and at Polly's Fine Candies there are some charming Ger-man milk chocolate bars imprinted with pictures of Snow White, Hansel and Gretel or Red Riding Hood. The traditional marzipan good luck pig is here too, as is a small box of marzipan founts.

Also, don't forget the girls like these too, even though they're in the boys' department.

To keep that youngster warm there are jogging suits (starting at size 4) for serious exercise and the fabulous Mighty Mac jackets for everything else. If you don't already know these, just ask Allen's to describe the many features and you will quickly be convinced of their value, approximately $65 for sizes 8 to 20 and there are several

Popular down jackets by Pacific Trail in bright orange or navy are here too ($40 to $55.) as is a lovely fleece wrapped bathrobe in navy or red that is sized for toddlers through boys 14, $12 and $16.

Betlows, 210 Nassau Street, also has boys' clothing, and our choice here for Christmas dinner was a Dress Gordon pair of slacks with a matching

Then for the bigger boys we in lovely colors such as burgundy, green, grey, yellow, heather blue, bright red and even pink, $22 for sizes 34 to 42.

Sister dresses have refreshing old-fashioned look to them, and yet Bellows have some that are far from oldfashioned. For instance, there is a green or dark navy velvet one-piece dress with the look of a jumper that comes in sizes from toddler 2 to girls 12, $29 to $39.

We also liked Florence Eiseman's navy suspender skirt with a red edging, $11 to $14 in sizes toddler to girls 12 too. Add a white turtleneck, and the outfit is complete.

The bigger girls can also consider a more sophisticated look such as the off-white corduroy jumpsuit by Ruth of Carolina. It has a drawstring waist, an appliqued red poppy and quilted red cotton collar and cuffs, $31, sizes 7 to 14.

Most sophisticated of all, however, is Anne Klein's quilted taffeta plaid skirt which has combined lavendar, red, black and green, and then teamed it with a long-sleeved lavendar silk pongee blouse or one of her red signature tshirts, $19 to $30.

The gift suggestions here are always varied and lots of fun. For the lucky child going South this winter, we liked a pink wrapped skirt with a haughty cat print. There are also slacks and t-shirts to go with both, $8 to $18.50.

Other thoughts are an offwhite fuzzy pile vest, a sleeping bag printed with Joan Walsh Anglund's dear little dolls and sweet sayings, a tartan plaid cotton flannel Paddington Bear backpack shirts, crewneck sweaters and and a turtleneck with a child's name printed down one of the sleeves, $7 to about $26.

Number one on most teenage Christmas lists, however, is a sweater. The choice is incredibly wide, but our selections were a multicolored (ashionable cowlnecked sweater, $14; a junior sized Fair Isle in any of several yummy colors, $25; a Deans cabled crewneck, $19; and a white Christmas sweater in a wrap style by Garland with red edging and red, blue and green stitching across the bodice, $26.

A close second behind sweaters is a request for nightclothes which range from Lanz granny gowns in small Austrian prints of hearts and flowers to an Izod rugby nightshirt in navy with green, red or yellow, $17 and $18. We also liked the Lollipop feet pajamas which will fit anyone to a tee as they are made of a stretch terry in solid colors or white with red or blue stripes, Teenagers and young adults are very shoe conscious these days and we can't think of a better gift than a pair of Bass waterproof boots from ttulit's, 140 Nassau Street. They are the kind you see in the L.L.

Give Your Christmas Tree

After Christmas last year, 40 nicely balled-and-burlapped Christmas trees, still with a bit of tinsel on the chin, were donated to the chin, were donated to the Princeton schools for erosion-control planting at Johnson Park School.

All 40 are alive, green and flourishing, and William Karch would like to have some more. Mr.
Karch directs facilities for the schools, and thought up the idea last year.

His crew will pick up your tree after Christmas whenever you say. It would be helpful to him if you could let him know ahead of time that you plan to donate a tree, and you can call him at 924-7306.

Your gift is tax-deductible, by the way.

Decorations. Each week we come across some new and Christmas different different Christmas decorations that we feel are perfect candidates to be added to a cherished collection. This week we found them at Princeton Gift Shop on Palmer Square, and most outstanding was a natural wood star with multi points and curls that will proudly sit on top of your tree $8.

Naturally, there are gifts here too, many of which reflect an animal theme. These include small bronzes from the Heredities Co. of England such as a textured mother penguin shielding her children; a fiberglass thermos with a goldfinch feeding in some purple thistle; and a wood-trimmed hot-tray with a design of Canada Geese, $17.50

We also felt that the Kashmir papier mache boxes with their perfectly detailed and matched designs were exquisite, $6 to $20.

Then, if you have a plate collector on your list, the 1976 Royal Copenhagen one is here featuring the Viback Mill built in 1756, $27.50. And, for a few final thoughts, we liked the Senior Magnalight which greatly enlarges and illuminates anything, $7.50, as well as denim suede wallet and checkfold set, $8.50 to

More Christmas thoughts are at the Loft Gallery, 306 Alexander Street, where we found some mobile Christmas cards. They are only $1.25 each, and when assembled are an enchanting full-color mobile of a Christmas theme, such as Santa in a plane.

Colorius siers, $53.

A particularly good gift item is the old stand-by bridge lamp which comes in solid brass with a laquer finish that can be polished or antiqued. It such as Santa in a plane.

And, speaking of framing, Gallery troduced a large selection of special order any furniture for stock-sized frames. However, Christmas, but there are these are unlike the run-of-the- many reduced floor samples mill stock frames, because that can be delivered in plenty they are made from custom of time. This includes moldings. There are a variety upholstered pieces such as a of wood-toned ones as well as lovely pale blue velvet wing they are made from custom of many in bright colors or gold chair or an off-white fine-and silver.

The prices start at about $4, and there is a large group under $10. They are perfect gifts for do-it-yourselfers, and just right for children's art work or needlepoint pictures, particularly as some of the frames are square.

The gallery itself provided with several suggestions such as the Batik pillows which have added interest in that certain sections have been outline quilted. Also, the colors are lovely - green, melon, tan and brown, and yellow or pink, $12

Other thoughts include

Penny Hoagland's hanging planter with a design of fins across the bottom of the off-white porcelain pottery, $18; Polly French's whimsical animal prints, from $8; and an elaborate leaded glass box made from beach glass, $45.

ould you relatives lean towards the contemporary, Viking Furniture at 259 Nassau Street has a small but carefully chosen group of Christmas suggestions. The choice ranges from lightweight silver plastic mobiles of biplanes, sharks, birds or boats to a multi-toned tan dyed American lamb fur throw large enough for a queen-sized bed, $8 to $289.

One of our favoritation of this week and your cards by the end of next. So don't delay, and you'll end up with lots of time for the cookie making and decorating that is generally the most fun.

One of our favorite suggestions was a white vinyl Dansk light kit. There are several models, all of which contain many angled pieces of the white vinyl, and the kit includes everything but the light bulb, from $23.95.

We also liked the glass from deall wastebaskets, the reindeer, bright red wooden rocking horse, tiny colorful wooden angels and box of 12 small old-fashioned ornaments, $1 to $4.

Then for the more traditional at heart, there is Nassau Interiors at 162 Nassau Street. Here you can choose one of several small choose one of several small mahogany pieces that you can probably even gift wrap. There is a tin-lined plant stand, a double-sectioned magazine stand, an inlaid drop-leaf Pembroke table, and several sizes of curio tables for displaying shells, miniatures, porcelains or whatever, $99 to $199.

Lamps are a mainstay here, and most are reduced at least to percent. We particularly liked a pewter candlestick design that is available with a square or round base, $89, and a glass one filled with small colorful shells, $85.

Finally, if your list includes a new young couple in a first apartment, you should be enchanted with a cherry dining table we found here. It is oval with drop leaves so that it requires a minimum of space when it is not in use. However when the occasion warrants, four leaves can be added and the table then can easily seat eight people, $249.

Again, thinking of the new apartment dweller, why not look at some of the exciting sheet designs we saw back at Stone's Linen Shop. There

> Then, as a complete sur-prise to Mrs. Broadwater, Mr. Blair, and me, Mrs. Hutter's letter appeared in the press the following week charging that the Democrats were playing politics, and moreover, warning citizens that we might try to "stack" the Planning Board with last minute additional appointments before the nonpartisan Republican majority took over in January. Everyone should know that there are no other vacancies on the Planning Board, and I know of no Township citizen appointee to the Board who intends to resign between now and January 1st.

There are other charges made by Mrs. Hutter in her letter to which I will not respond here. I do not believe in members of Township Committee engaging in accusations against other members of Committee via letters to the editor. The proper forum is a public meeting of Township Committee, and this matter can be further continued there, if she or anyone else so desires.

My dismay at her letter in no way diminishes the admiration I have for Mrs. Hutter. She is an outstanding Committeewoman, and I have been fortunate in serving with her on Township Committee during my tenure as Mayor. She will make an excellent Mayor come January, and I hope that she will carry out her duties in a manner that gives full credence to the belief in nonpartisanship she has repeatedly professed. I agree with Mrs. Hutter's including letter, recognition and appreciation Mrs. Broadwater's abilities, in its entirety. I am sorry that circumstances prevented me from writing a similar one. Had I done so, I would have urged that since the seat was held open so long for Abbot Low Molfat, it be kept open six weeks longer for Hugo Hoogenboom who is outstandingly well qualified to serve and whose election clearly mirrored the deep concern of Township residents for the environment in which they live.

Book Records Colorful History of Delaware and Raritan Canal From Its Start in 1831 to Major Effect on Life in Princeton

Like many of us, Elizabeth G.C. Menzies is irresistibly drawn to the water. But as a Princeton photographer, artist and author, she carries her interest beyond the reflections mirrored on a rippling surface to the role which rivers and waterways played in the developing history of the surrounding

In two earlier books Miss Menzies gave a portrait of the Upper Delaware Valley and of the Millstone River in a combination of words and pictures—the pictures being her own excellent photographs. Now comes "Passage Between Rivers: A Partfelio of Photographs with Portfolio of Photographs with a History of the Delaware and Raritan Canal," published last week by Rutgers University Press.

This is an engaging little book which can be read in a single sitting or browsed through intermittently, because the text is designed in units of a page, each dealing with an aspect of the canal and accompanied by an appropriate photograph or 19th Century illustration. Miss Menzies traces the waterway Menzies traces the waterway from its long delayed construction in 1831 to its heyday as a transportation link carrying great volumes of cargo along its 45-mile length from Bordentown to New Brunswick, to its decline and use primarily as a water source and as a recreation area for bird watchers, canoers and joggers.

It was Robert Field Stockton, grandson of the signer, who came to the aid of the faltering Delaware and Baritan Canal Company by Raritan Canal Company by barrowing from his wealthy father-in-law, John Potter, to buy 4,800 shares of the stock in the company before the expiration of its charter. The stage coach business and innkeeping had enjoyed a long and profitable monopoly in the two villages, Princeton and Kingston, that were halfway between New York and Philadelphia.

Financed in Europe. Robert became of the Canal Company and persuaded the owners of the also newlyincorporated Camden and Amboy Railroad, forerunners of the Pennsylvania Railroad, to join in a merger which became known as the Joint Companies and in effect a new monopoly. Stockton also made a trip to Europe to borrow additional capital when the cost of construction soared from the first estimates of $800,000 to $1.1 million at a time when America was suffering a recession.

SERENE WATERWAY: The Delaware and Raritan Canal as viewed from Griggstown and photographed by Elizabeth G.C. Menzles. In her new book of photographs and history of the canal, she describes the once-bustling thoroughfare "a welcome ribbon of green across the ever increasing congestion of central Basin, thus giving it special importance, and built Canal (now Alexander) Street from near the Stockton family home, Morven, down to the Basin. Princeton Bank and Trust began at the head of Canal Street, and coal and lumber companies, of which Grover Lumber is the last surviving, sprang up alongside this thoroughfare near the canal, which bore heavy construction materials.

Miss Menzies has also focused on the canal houses, (some were wooden and some built of stone), the locks (there were 14 in all), and the 60 pivot bridges of which the one that the Dinky passes over several times a day is the last in existence. She writes of the mile teams hitched in tan-dems that did a 14-mile stint a day, of the coal barges bringing anthracite from Pennsylvania mines and of the daily steam packet pleasure boats.

The book ends, fittingly, with the formation of the Delaware and Raritan Canal Delaware and Karitan Canal Coalition by Lee Bullitt and Margen Penick in the late 1960's and early 1970's to in-sure the preservation of the old waterway and its environs. WORLD PREMIERE of a new play by the Scandinavian writer Per Olov Enquist, "The Night of the Tribades," Is this Thursday, at McCarter Theatre. STRINDBERG ON STAGE
A Slice of His Life. "....a very black comedy," which is about America in 1976 as much as Sweden in 1889. That's the way playwright Per Olov Enquist, at a recent press conference in Princeton, described his play, "The Night of the Tribades," which will have its American premiere at McCarter this Thursday at 7:30. It will play in McCarter's repertory through Sunday, December 19.

Enquist is regarded as one of Scandinavia's most promising writers, and "...Tribades" has been performed in a dozen cities throughout Europe, translated into as many languages. The English translation on McCarter's stage is by Ross Shideler.

The play describes the relationships between angry, tortured Strindberg, a noted Swedish playwright of his own day (Donald Madden), his frustrated wife Siri (Patricia Elliott), and her Lesbian friend Marie (Kathryn Walker).

Dramatic action occurs during a rehearsal of Strindberg's one-act play, "The Stranger", and embraces also the actor Viggo Schiwe (Ted Graeber), who is witness to the stormy happenings on stage at the theatre in Copenhagen, and a photographer, played by Lawrence Holofcener, who has come to record the trio with his camera.

Michael Kahn, McCarter's producing director, is the director for this production. Michael H. Yeargan and Lawrence King have designed the set, Jane Greenwood the costumes and John McLain the lighting. This is the team that worked together in "Streetcar Named Desire."

IT'S NOT CHRISTMAS.....
Until "Nutcracker"
Arrives. The Mouse King, the Sugarplum Fairy, the Nutcracker Prince and all the rest are a Christmas tradition in Princeton, and the holiday isn't really official until the Princeton Ballet Society and McCarter Theatre have presented their "Nutcracker" ballet.

This year, there will be three performances: Tuesday and Thursday, December 21 and 23, at 4:30 and Wednesday, December 22, at 7, all at McCarter Theatre.

The Tschaikowsky ballet will be given, as always, complete in its two acts. This year, several of the Act II divertissements have been restaged by Judith Leviton from original choreography by Lila Brunner. Also, the Snowflakes have new costumes, designed by Gloria Woodside and Ruth Pettit sculpture that is so lifelike that one might assume that the subject was a forgery and that the true reality might be found in the artist's representation.

Dodie Pettit, of the Princeton Ballet Company, will alternate with guest artist Barbara Sandonato of the Pennsylvania Ballet in the rôle of the Sugarplum Fairy. Sugarplum's Cavalier will be danced by Bruce Wells alternating with Robert Glady, Both are guest artists.

The sculpture is accompanied by a collection of drawings. Although the artist is, as usual, faithful to his models, the drawings embody a different reality in which both the artist and his poetry are present making a overly-sentimental devotional statement that goes beyond that the true reality in which artist and his poetry usually been considered and a different making a overly-sentimental devotional statement that goes beyond prince to finite the true of this century, the art of Murillo was usually been considered and overly-sentimental devotional painter of limited talent and appeal.

Although both artists appear to be concentrating on creating harmonies in color, paint and form, their direction and methods are sufficiently different to create two distinctive collections.

Shahbender has focused on the landscape as a basis for a design and color statement. Specifically, she has centered on the green harmonies of fields and flowers developing a limited palette to express the subtle variations of her subject. Surface is carefully considered, complementing flat color areas with impasto technique and textural effects. The restricted palette and flowing constructions of the paintings combine to capture the horizontal rhythms and color blends.

Salkind creates a conrasting dynamic developing vigorous color relationships and using her paint to create a sense of energetic movement. She is equally comfortable with her materials whether a relating design and color statement or developing interpretive realism. Sporting and boating scenes are vigorous and well executed studies in which the essence of the subject is well integrated into carefully-constructed compositions employing pleasing color relationships. A pleasing palette is employed for washes which blend and flow, often with dramatic results. Ceglia's technique, however, has begun to dominate his considerable skill with line and form and in many of the paintings washes away his ability to construct away his ability to constitute interesting, carefully-developed works. What appeared as a consistency of style risks becoming repetitive, and is not equal to the work in which Ceglia's fine technique is combined with fresh use of space, some fresh use of space, some conscious design input and a reassurance that this artist's Sunflowers, a tomato plant product is continuing to develop and grow.

It's easy to guess that George Blanda scored more points than anyone else in the history of the National Football League – but who ranks 2nd and 3rd on the all-time point-scoring list? ... One of them is still active in the NFL today ... The man who ranks 2nd behind Blanda for most points ever is Lou Groza and the man who has scored the 3rd most points in history is Fred Cox, who's still active with the Minnesota Vikings.

Since football coaches always stress that teams should cut down mistakes and turnovers, here's an amazing record ... The Cleveland Browns fumbled only 8 times ALL SEASON in 1959 ... Some teams fumble more than that in 2 or 3 games - but, even with that all-time record for fewest fumbles, the Browns did not finish first that year.

Here's a tough football question ... One of most famous the coaches today is Bear Bryant of Alabama but the question is: Can you name the man who was the Alabama coach before Bryant? ... You have to be a pretty good fan to remember this ... Answer is J.B. (Ears) Whitworth, who coached Alabama from 1955 through 1957 ... Bryant took over in 1958.

Tiger Quintet Heads for Tough Battle at Maryland Saturday After Revealing High-Scoring Potential in Rout of Colgate foul trouble, Princeton's new-found front-line height would

The first of three extremely difficult road games on Princeton's pre-Christmas basketball schedule is set for Saturday night at College Park, Md. The University of Maryland, which has achieved 20 or more victories in each of the last five seasons, and was 11th ranked nationally in preseasoo polls, will be the Tigers' opponent in an 8 p.m.

Two factors will be working against an upset for the young Princetonians, who have Captain Bob Slaughter as the lone senior on their roster. Any tendency to take an Ivy team lightly on the part of Coach Lefty Briesell's Terrapins will be banished by recallection of what Pete recollection of what Pete Carril's operatives did last year, when they upended nationally-ranked Alabama in the first round of the Maryland tournament and then lost by only four points (63-59) to the confident Terps on their own court. If that were not enough to bring Maryland out fighting, the home team will be smarting from the one-point overtime loss that Notre Dame inflicted on it last Saturday.

Driesell's top point-producer is Steve Sheppard, a point-6-6 forward, who averaged 17.6 points last season. Larry Gibson, the 6-10 center to whom Bob Roma will give away two inches, and guard Brad Davis were also in double figures.

The Terps are the second team from that state on Princeton's schedule this week. Navy, which opened its season with a seven-point victory over Dartmouth, was scheduled to play in Jadwin Gym this Wednesday night at Solld Start. While it was apparent early on that Colgate was outmatched in Princeton's first game of the season Saturday, the Tigers nonetheless did enough things well that it is already apparent they will make a strong defense of their Ivy title and beat their share of good independent teams. The 95-48 trouncing of the Red Raiders (13-11 last winter and returning nine of ten lettermen) revealed an offensive punch Carril's teams have oot always had. The point-total was Princeton's highest in four years and the point spread was its greatest since a demolishing of Dartmouth at Hanover by 116-42 a decade

While it must be underscored that Colgate did not furnish a major share of opposition, the somewhat astonishing part of the evening was the fact that the Tigers did not tail off in efficiency as the reserves took over in the one-sided contest. With the five starters in for most of the opening half, they shot 50 percent from the floor; as Carril cleared his bench-of nine subs the last made it into the game with five minutes left-they shot 60 percent for the final half.

All 14 players scored, and one of them, reserve center Tom Young, made it into double figures with 10. At 6-11, he is the tallest player in 75 years of Princeton basketball, and while he has much to learo in his sophomore year, there is also much promise.

From the Outside. What may be the eventual hallmark of this Princeton team is its ability to hit from outsidefrom the corners and in the middle, from six to ten feet beyond the foul circle. Zones, it would seem--and many teams use them to keep top players out of foul troublewill be quite vulnerable against this band of sharpshooters.

Take, for example, Frank Sowinski, the ice-cool 6-5 junior starting his second year at forward. He was 8-for-11 on field goals--one of them a layup following a steal, the other seven jumpers ranging as far out as 20 feet. He added 4 of 5 from the line, and his 20 points in the 28 minutes alloted to him were two more than the leading two Colgate scorers made together in 51 minutes of combined playing time.

The Tigers' big men, Roma and Young, both showed to advantage, Roma in par-ticular displaying a brand of agressiveness that was not always apparent in his freshman season. He lead both teams in rebounds with seven and hit on four of eight field goal attempts.

Young was 3-for-5 from the floor and a welcome 4-for-5 at the line-some big men have a tendency to be sloppy on foul shots. He grabbed six rebounds in the ten minutes he played and on one occasion, blocked the same opponent's shots twice in succession and wound up grabbing the loose ball. If he develops to the point where Carril can move Roma to a forward slot, should Sowinski or Slaughter get into Trotman's job of trying to select the best talent will be somewhat easier after two scrimmages, one against New Brunswick Saturday and another against East Brun-swick here Tuesday.

Still Man-To-Man. One thing that won't change this year will be the style of play. "We'll be man to man again --definitely,'' conlirmed Trotman.

Winning Isn't Everything ...

And while those who have seen the fiery Trotman often clash with officials on the court may find it difficult to believe, winning for him isn't the only thing.

Trotman has not had a losing season in his three years. He admits that he hopes he doesn't ever have one. But he adds: "While I think winning is important, it's more important to develop a sense responsibility."

A guidance counselor at PHS, he says that he looks at his players not from the point of view as winners or losers but that they grow up to be men.

"You don't realize the impact you have on them until you see them graduate. That's when I feel good: when you see kids go on to college and succeed, even though you may have had them only a small part of the time, 1 think enough teachers look at their roles in that light."

strive for this year, "There's an actual title to shoot for and we don't have to beat the Trentons and the Hamiltons

As for Princeton's chances in the conference, Trotman said with tongue in cheek that PHS "was scared to death" of Hopewell Valley, the preseason choice as the team

"We'lt be in there," vowed Trotman. "We won't tie down for them." He predicted that As long as he can keep two his team will be in "some kind or three of his big men on the of decent shape." It won't be any more iron-man live or six

He said that one could sense to do something big this year. It's just a matter of when."

Ted Schiller, who was ignored by the seven other Ivy League coaches in selections for their all-star team, was named as a defensive lineman on the first team chosen by 20 coaches in Division I of the Eastern College Athletic Conference. None of the linemen named Ali-Ivy on the defensive unit were accorded similar recognition.

A Lawrenceville resident was chosen on the Ali-East team as a receiver. He is Mark Twitty, an end on Rutgers' undefeated Rutgers'

Payton is Standout. Precourse, is Payton. As a sophomore last year, Payton averaged 20 points a game. He already has passed the 1,000 mark and barring injury will become Hun's all-time scorer this winter.

That honor is presently held by Princeton's Tony Trani, who amassed 1,301 points as a standout guard playmaker for Hun. After a year's post-graduate study at Lawrenceville, where he excelled for the Larries on the court, Trani was accepted at Princeton University where he hopes to continue his career under Pete Carril.

Payton's one liability was a tendency to tire last year. This year, Leete reports that the Trenton resident has grown stronger and bigger. "He'll be our best rebounder," Leete predicted

The outlook for Hun is bright. Leete sees the season coming down to a battle between Hun and its nearby rival, Pennington School, for league honors. Pennington has been strengthened by the transfer of Tim Zimpleman, a member of last year's powerful Trenton High School team.

Top 4 Teams Dominate All-Ivy Selections; Princeton Shut Out in Football Balloting

The marked imbalance in the Ivy Football League, which saw four teams in the race for the championship until the final day and the other four tied for last place, is reflected in the selections for the All-Star Team made by the eight coaches. Of 26 places awarded, 22 went to the cochampions, Brown and Yale, and the two third-place finishers, Dartmouth and Harvard.

Columbia and Penn shared the remaining four, Cornell and Princeton were shut out. A year ago, the Tigers placed tackle Ted Schiller on the defensive team as a junior for their lone representative, but this fall, Schiller had his problems, including an ankle injury that hobbled him for the last four games, and was by-passed in the balloting.

Princeton's season-long problems were reflected in the fact that whereas the 1975 nominations saw the Tigers place Schiller on the first team and five others on the second, only two players were named to the second team this fall. Captain Dan Fournier is the split end on offense, safety Pete Bartlett was one of the backs on defense.

Two others rated honorable mention: end Hank Howarth and middle guard Marc Fiorvanti. All four are seniors, so the Tigers will not start the 1977 season with any players the other coaches considered top-drawer material this fall.

Dartmouth led in the number of representatives chosen with seven, Harvard and Yale each placed six, while Brown trailed with three. The Bruins' overall balance and depth proved adequate for a share of the title in the absence of a higher number of individual standouts.

Brown's Paul Michalko was the choice at quarterback, succeeding Harvard's Jim Kubacki, whose slide from his top form in 1975 was symbolized by his failure to achieve anything more than honorable mention this year. The running backs are Yale's fine junior, John Pagliaro, and Harvard's Tom Winn.

Yale's position as favorite in the 1977 race is reflected by the choice of three juniors and the lone sophomore on the first team. Of the 26 players named, 17 will graduate in June. In addition to Yale, Dartmouth and Harvard were each represented by two juniors and Penn by one.
